YOU ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR KNOWING AND FOLLOWING EVERYTHING OUTLINED HERE. MAKE SURE TO ASK CLARIFYING QUESTIONS IN THE FIRST TWO WEEKS OF CLASS SO THERE ARE NO MISUNDERSTANDINGS.

I. Course Description:

This course provides a study of the roles of race and racism in the development of U.S. capitalism – with a focus on structural racism, and using theoretical analyses such as political economy, stratification economics, and institutional economics. Students examine the impact of racism on the distribution of income, wealth, and economic and educational opportunity. Students analyze the roles of race and racism in the economics of historical experiences such as enslavement, Reconstruction, migration and urbanization, as well as in their roles in the economics of contemporary business cycles and of on-going long term transformations of both the U.S. and global economies.

Learning Outcomes:

1. Students will demonstrate an understanding of theoretical propositions associated with explaining economic discrimination and structural racism, particularly political economy and stratification economics.
2. Students will be able to evaluate the effects and consequences of certain policies in creating and perpetuating overt racism and structural racism.
3. Students will formulate meaningful and purposeful questions, and solve problems through evidence-based inquiry, and marshal evidence to support their assertions.
4. Analyze statistical data from tables and reports and use the information in an essay.
5. Communicate effectively with the professor and fellow students: i) orally through class discussion and presentations, ii) in the writing of reflections, essays, exams, and papers; and iii) demonstrate the skills to operate effectively in small groups, and produce a joint product, through their work in teams.

II. Text and Materials:

Required Texts

Blackboard will be used. This course management website is free. All students are required to get to know the site immediately. Weekly assignments, supplemental articles, course updates, course documents and/or links, discussion boards, and other sources to help you and to keep the class in communication with each other are on this site. Many required assignments will be given on this site. A copy of this syllabus will also be on the site. Please take your time to learn and utilize the class website. DO NOT WAIT until the last minute to become familiar with this website. It will be impossible to get a high grade in the class if you do not participate on the site. Find the link from the John Jay website www.jjay.cuny.edu.

Students should also know how to access journal articles online from the John Jay library http://www.lib.jjay.cuny.edu/.

III. Grading and Assignments

Your final grade will reflect the degree to which you can think critically, and write well. Students will be also rewarded for presenting reasonably coherent and well thought through arguments. Credit will also be given for consistent attempts to present ideas in class and for consistent participation in class discussions.

Regular attendance, promptness, evidence that you are prepared, good grades on your assignments and participation in classroom discussions will impact positively on your final grade. Frequent absences, arriving late for classes, failing to do the assigned readings, doing poorly on assignments and not participating in classroom discussions will result in a low grade or failure.

Grade Distribution

- Essay exams (3): 40 points (10,15,15)
- Research Paper: 20 points
- Team Paper and final presentation: 15 points
- Class Participation, small group in-class assignments, worksheets, quizzes: 15 points
- Oral presentations: 10 points
- Total points: 100

Assignments

In-Class Essays with Critical Analysis (10, 15, 15 points = 40 points total): Three essay exams written during class will be assigned throughout the semester: February 26, March 31, April 2, May 12, 2014. These exams will be about an assigned topic based on assigned readings and class discussions. Essay exams will be 45 minutes long, and will be in the form of short and long essays, and sometimes short answer questions. Notes can be used with the first exam. Study guides will be given out 10 days before each exam, along with more details about each exam.
Research Paper (20 points total): Paper One is a research paper (8-10 pages, worth 20 points) exploring Black Political Economy and how different scholars explain structural or institutional racism. Students will be required to hand in a preliminary outline and annotated bibliography (4 new, must be from outside sources you have found yourself) by March 17, 2014 (worth 5 points of the 20 points). A draft of the introduction and first 2 sections of the paper (with bibliography) will be due April 7, 2014 (required but not given separate points, but reduces final points by 3-5 points if not handed in before the final draft). The full paper (final draft) is due after spring break on April 30, 2014. More details will be provided.

Team Paper and final presentation (15 points): Paper 2 is a group policy analysis paper, analyzing a relevant policy (or policies) related to contemporary racism in the US (must be approved by the professor); due on the day the final exam is scheduled May 19, 2014 at 4 PM (8 pages, 10 academic references, 10 points). Students will form teams to produce this paper, and from 4 to 6 PM on May 19, 2014 teams will give an oral presentation to the class summarizing and discussing their paper, using power point (additional 5 Points). Every team member must be present and must participate in the oral presentation. More details will be provided.

Class Participation, Small group discussion, quizzes, in-class assignments and worksheets (15 points total): Students are expected to come to class regularly and participate in class discussions and activities. A brief written quiz, reflection or other exercise on the assigned readings and/or previous class discussions will take place at the beginning of each class. Be punctual and attend all classes. Note that over 60% of your final grade is based on in-class activities.

Oral Presentations (10 points total): Each student is required to give at least 2 oral presentations to the class and/or lead a class discussion (separate from the final team oral presentation). Students can earn up to 10 points for these presentations.

V. Important Additional Information

Classroom behavior:
Student participation is required. Students are expected to arrive to class prepared to work. While we will engage in spirited debate, we will always endeavor to address each other in a respectful manner. Students should be respectful of their classmates and instructors by talking when called upon, not disrupting another classmate, or the instructor, addressing issues and scholarship rather than people or personalities, and referring to class readings and scholarship to support their statements. The professor encourages students to think critically and use scholarly analysis in their oral and written assessments. Students should come to class prepared, having read the readings and completed assignments on time. Students should be punctual, and responsible. Students are expected to stay awake in class. Please no use of cell phones during class, and all cell phones must be turned off during examinations. Other electronic devices should be switched off during class, unless a specific exception is made by the professor. The professor does not expect students to leave class to answer their cell phones or to play with these devices while in class. No bathroom breaks will be given during quizzes or exams.
Statement of College Policy on Plagiarism:

Plagiarism is the presentation of someone else’s ideas, words, or artistic, scientific, or technical work as one’s own creation. Using the ideas or work of another is permissible only when the original author is identified. Paraphrasing and summarizing, as well as direct quotations, require citations to the original source. Plagiarism may be intentional or unintentional. Lack of dishonest intent does not necessarily absolve a student of responsibility for plagiarism.

It is the student’s responsibility to recognize the difference between statements that are common knowledge (which do not require documentation) and restatements of the ideas of others. Paraphrase, summary, and direct quotation are acceptable forms of restatement, as long as the source is cited. Students who are unsure how and when to provide documentation are advised to consult with their instructors. The Library has free guides designed to help students with problems of documentation. (From the John Jay College of Criminal Justice Undergraduate Bulletin, p. 36)

Students should study the APA style at http://www.apaguide.net/ or from any other source on APA style; and see professor’s factsheet: “Guidelines to Using and Quoting from Sources” (Hand-out and on Blackboard), which also describes how to use it. Turnitin.com may be used for at least one of the paper submissions to help students understand the proper use of sources and prevent academic dishonesty. In addition, students should visit the Writing Center before completing the first writing assignment.

Please note that Wikipedia is not an acceptable academic source for any information used, discussed or written about in this class.

Statement Regarding Students with Disabilities: The Office of Services for Students with Disabilities (at 237-8122) provides support services and counseling for students who are physically challenged, have learning disabilities, and/or have medical conditions which affect their performance in the classroom setting. If you are in need of special assistance, please contact that office (and then me) no later than the second week of class.
